1. What would happen when the defendants were rescued? Why?

'I'he defendants would first get medical care and then would be j)ut on I-r'lal for wli@it labeled in the cave. to 'be more exact the death of Roger Whetmore since a person',-, cle@il,,@ c@innot be overlooked.

2- Do you agree that this sentence is fair? Why?

Ye,,-,. All the fzict,-z were open, a.-id ',lie decision of the judge w@is not reached in an illegal manner.

3- If you were a member of the Supreme Court, what would be your ruling? Why?

T'ne defendants -.Ire guilty for the murder of Roger Whetmore. 1-ne defendants  $w_{ere}$  under extreme circumstances to be ,ure, but, this doe@-. not excuse them from the ;il,)Pliczition of @ill the commonwealth laws. M@iking an agreement which permits them to control someone',, life be iiiierpret@' by the law of the commoriwe@ilth, 'Fhe fact Whetmore actually withdrew from the @iremen" and that Whetmore did not thre@iten the defendant--, in @inv w@iv, shows that the defendant--, forcefully took Whetmore's life with ni,jcli

4. Ilow would you characterize your ruling from question 3? Why?

M ,@t ruling would be ch@iractepzed by natur@il positive law aid critical legal studies. Although the law must be obeyed no matter what, it is bised on certain n@itural law,-, and there must be exceptions by inten,)rettition for that age,

5. Summariz-e each of the rulings above. Characterize each as one of the three interpretations of Law above and justify-

'ri-uepennv agree-, to tl-ie ruli.-ig of the trial court thal, the defendants, are guilty of murder ind in turn supports the court's communication to the Chief F@,xecutive to @isk for clemencv of the @ling@

'I'ruepenn@, argues that the ruling wc-iz fair @ind wi-,e @ind was the c)nlv course th@it w@is open to them under the law. fle @idds that the stzitue "Whoever shall wilfullv take the life of another shall be Finished by death" permits no exeml)tloll al)l)ci:tble to the case but sympathies may perm@, ---i @.Ilow@ince.

Ile believes that if this is done, justice will be accomplished without impairing either the letter or the "I-)Irit of our statues and without offering encouragement for the disregard of law.

Since Tr-u@nnv focuses on keeping with the status n'gidiv, he tikes the positivist Perspective. Trtjel)enny is allowiiif-i no excel)tl(-)ris for the linux. He is Shivit Jf." that he law is the law

Foster-j

l, 'oster disagrees with t'@ie trial cciur@,-'s ruling, thit the defendants are guilty for the murder of Roger W"netmore,. Ile believes that the defendants are innocent of ariv crime whatsoever.

The first argument he gives is that our pte-@iit law is not @il)Plic@ible to the sitli@itioii th@it the defendants @vere in inside th cave, Ile sav,,, that the defeiid@ijits were in a st@ille of nature, not in @t state of civil society therefore, the established law of the Commonwealth is not ipprol-)Tizite to their condition. They needed a new charter of goveniment apl)roi)nate to the situation in which they found themselves, award under th@it, charter, the defendant-, are guittles- of an, crime.

In his second position Foster assumes that the defendants are under the effect of the law of the Commonwealth. fl(j,,vever he argues ,hat although the defeiid@iiits did liter@iltv bre@ik the ,t@,ilulle that restricts the willful killing of man, tl-.e:,, did not break the law itself. The statue must be interpreted in the light of its purpose. Ilow people mav @ict at times of life threateniitt .,jLua,lioiis is not controlled by the contents of the criminal code. Foster gives the e.@ai-nple of self-defense in -arguing "h@it the statute never been applied literally. As killing in ,;elf defense is excused although the state does not state it, the situation the defeiid-,Ij)ts were in cannol be applied by the statute either.

Foster takes the view of social science. Ile sav-, that every proposition of

't've law it-,elf, whether cotit@tin@. in a statue or a 'udici-cli precedent is to be posi 1 interpreted re@isonzibly in the light of its evident purpose. tic is focusing on the pragmatism of the results. It would be unpractical to zil)plv the Positive law of society to the deferid@tiit,@ in the cave and it would also be unl-)ractic@il to rif,)-idiv al)])Iv the statute to the defendant--, in the sit,,i@illion of life @i.-id death.

I'at'ling -,tarts his ,tateme@-it by arguing ag n--,t Foster',--, opinion. 'emitting th@it the code the defendants m@ide in the cave is odious ind therefore cannot become the basis of law. Secondl 'ITig point,-; Oti

.@,. Tat,' t th@it the purpose of cjimin@il le,@,'sl@itioti has more than deterrence. Ile argue--, tha@, Fc)ster'@- an@illogy of self defense to this case can not be @ii-)plied since the men acted deliberately and after hours of discussion. Tatting strofigi@F object,..; to Foster',, we@il< @ti)d unsound arguments to make @ill e,@cel)tion of the case. -I'he scope of the exception into the statue to fzt\!our this case is not brought up. Tatting himself., though. withdraw,,, from the case.

Tatting does not seem to take any stron@, view since he !raw, not m-@ide aiiv argument,, himself.

Keeii@, J

Keen starts c)ul, by setting aside two question--,, NN11-ii(.h are not before this Court. Those are whether executive clemencn, .,hould be extended to the clefenci@ints. @ind the second is that the cour-t's object is not to @tppllv conceptions of morality, but the law of the l@iiid. Ile goes on to point out that the sole question before the 'udi-!es is whether the,,& defendants did, within the meaning of N.C.S.A.(N.S.)12-A, wilfully take the life of Roger Whetmore, Keen, @avs that anvone could see that the defendants did. so.

Keen says that the (luestioi) in dealing with the statute is not the conjectural purpose of the rule, but its scope. Deterrence is a purpose that has already been much pi-is--ed over in interpretation, The scope of the exception in fzivour of --,elf-defense applies to cases of resisting an aggressive thre@it to the part\,P's own life, But it is [)lain that Whetmore made no tl-,re@tt against the lives of these defendants.

Keen takes the Positivist Perspective. He focuses on the wording of the liw and does riot allow nior@ilit.N, to i interfere with Vne court',ti 'udgemeiit in interpret@itioii the Ilancl@7 believes that government is a human @iff@tir and that forms and abstract concepts ire just instruments. He irgue,.; that the question before the court is of practical wisdom @ind of human re@ilities. Therefore, Handy believes that the decision,,, the court makes are controlled in sc).-nekv,@iv- by the public opinion. And in thi- case in particular, since 90% of the public believe that the defendants should be pardoned or let off with a kind of tokeri punishment, and due to common sense. the defendants are innocent.

flandv takes the Social Science view. Sociologicil Juiisi.)rudence is based on the belief that the law is hum-.in and therefore never absolute. lizindv emt)hasizes the humanity of law and the practically of the application of law as primitive.

6. Which argument did you find most compel@g? Why?

I found th@it T@.tting's argument AAa,, the most compelling. Tatting',-, argument of the code the defendants made in the cive was quite compelling. The fundimentality of the law of contr@icts and the law of murder, the validity of the code, the effect of the withdrawal of Whetmore from the agreement etc was a good argument in di,,illu,,ioni@-ig the idea that the defendants must be innocent. The defendants were under extreme circumstances to be sure, but this does not, excuse them from making Fair agreement which deals with someone's life. The fact that Whetmore actuall\, withdrew from the ,-igrement and that Whetmore did not threaten the defendants in any wiv. shows that the defendants do riot have an excuse fr(An being convicted of murder.

Review Questions

1. What is law?

l,aw is a rule enacted or ciastomary ii) a community and recognized @is commanding or forbidding certain actions. In a nutshell, law is "the enterprise of -subjecting human conduct to the govenizince of rules."(f,on Fuller)

2. What is the function of law?

The fut-iction of law can be defined as: "I'o maintah-i a system of social control while facilitating, social life." The )a\i,, functions @is a system@itic way to resolve disputes between individuals

3. List five forins of social control and describe how they operate?

Information control: Information can be controlled in various ways. The government can limit the amount or certain kind of information from the public by censoring the media. Cotiit-olliiii, what goes on the front 1)age, what i)ew,, should be aired on tv or the r@idio is only one part of information control. As the people become more of their rights (the constitution guanintees freedom of the press) and as the world relies more on technology, limiting infonn@itiori from the mass public is becoming more difficult.

Morals/ethics: Moral,.; are concerned Nvith the goodness or badness of human character or behavior, oi@ with the distinction between right and wrong. In this way morils Fact to control ultimately how we behave. Although r@iting what is good and b@id. may van,, from person to person there exists a certiin universal standard of what is right or wrong. Going @igailist this affects the deet) rooted feelings of our mor@ility and thus acts as a deterrent against behavin- unsocially. rradition/culture: Tradition is a belief, custom. (-)Pinion that is handed down to f)ostcrill@,, and which controls our s@ial behavior as well. The w@iy we think and act is unconsciously controlled by these customs that have been rooted in our minds. Although tr@idition is not as forced upon us as before, it is still z-i pirt of our lives which requires obligations ar-id Iiiiiit@.ttioli,,...

Fashion: Fashion, in whatever form it may be, is what control,--, the events of "od@@v. When @i certain f@ishion is aroused, the vo7uTig who generally ire the most guilable, are @IL)t to follow it to the full. The way they talk beli@ive or dress are @ill part of th@it sea,,on's fashion.

Manners, 'h@ibits: The wav we act mav be just form of habits we hive required over the .years. Just because we have 't@ii doing something for such a time, it may be very uncomfortable or unnerving 'lo suddeily, stop doing. 11@ibits in this \NT@tv operate in directing us to lead our lives in a certain form, d@iv by day.

4. Describe three views of the law and indicate the focus of each. Illustrate each view with an example.

Natural law: The view of natural law expects the legal system to reflect fundamental and @il-)solute principles of justice that are iril-ierent in human life. l,egal principles, r@ither tli-.Iii be ttie. product of should be derived from -.In @ibsolute moral and ethical -scheme. Therefore murder is @Inl-ierent-ty wrong because it is univert@illy regarded -is a b@,id act. The focus of natural law is on the content of Positivist Y'ersijective: In the Pos'lt'lv'lsl,- Perspective, a law Is truly a law if it h@is the form of a law. Therefore, even a bad law ;,@, its much a la\,,, @is @t good one. "The letter of the l@iw" is important in this view. The focus is on the process of the law.

Social Science: The J-)r@ictic@ility of the results of the avl)l'lc4ctfioij of the Law is to be

'dered as primary. Sociol gical Jurisprudence is based on ti-ic belief that the l@iw is con-,I human and therefore never absolute. It is based on ex@rience. riot logic. In the case of lirowri vs. Board of Educ@-itioii(!95/4 ") the court found th@it racially segregated schools were I illegal on the basis tl-iat l@lz@,ck@ learned more in i-@i-,,egr@ited. schools than in ,-egreg@ited -schools. 'I'he focus of Social Science is on the pragmatism of the results.

5. What do you think Socrates's attitude toward the law was? What then could # he have meant by the dictum, 'Reject authority'?

Socrates viewed the law in the Positivist Perspective. The verdict sentencing him to death, though control to fact, while that of a legitimate court and must therefore be obeved. Socrates'--, argued that one ought never to do @,rong(even in response to the evil committed b e @i @@ another) by, It is -ilwa.N,,s @vr-ong to disobey Lh st te hence, one ought never to di-,obey "he ,tate. So since @ivoiding the sentence of de@i'll-@ h@itided down by the Athenian jury would be an iction in di--, obedience of the state, it follows

Socrates ought riot to esc@it)e. Sckrzit@-'s dictum on rejecting authority seems to be out of line wif,',i hi-, @itt@,ude toward,, the but Socrates was willing to disobev whit he felt was an unjust law, vet he was also willing to ziccelit the consequences iiid n(-)rm,,..

6. What do you think of the legalization of Marijuana? Give three arguments, pro or con, using the three perspectives as discussed in class. Define each perspective and show why each argument fits its perspective.

M@triju@tn@i should not be leg@ilized because the law should not allow "-uch a of society to be allowed freeiy. This argument comes from the view of natural law which focuses oi) the legal @is reflecting fundamental anct absolute principles of Justice th.@it are inherent; In human life.

M@iri'uzina should be legalized to decrease the misuse of it. If it were legalized, the I)I@iclc m-ciri(et would decre@ise and the government would be inure able to control the flow of m@irijuan@t @ind enoor,@ help to people who are addicted. This argument is b@ised on social Science. Linder this view, the existing law must be @ibolished if it has iie@y@itive results ind the interpretation of law should be based on exi@ence.
